

Contents

List of Illustrations viii

Preface ix

Acknowledgments xi

Introduction 1

1. “A lady should never look directly at a male visitor”:
Thomasin von Zerclaere 11
 2. “Wild glances”: Winsbeckin and Der Renner 21
 3. “The woman behind the wall”:
Heinrich von Melk and Der Stricker 35
 4. “He was as handsome as he could be!”: Male Beauty and the Ogling Lady in the Eneasroman 47
 5. “The most handsome knight that ever lived”:
Female Scopophilia in Parzival 68
 6. “Lady, you saw it with your own eyes!”: Enite and the Perfect
Female Gaze in Hartmann’s Erec 88
 7. Knight or Eye Candy? The Gendering Gaze
in Hartmann von Aue’s Iwein 105
- Conclusion 122

Appendix: English translations of Heinrich von Melk’s Von des todes gehugde and Der Stricker’s Die eingemauerte Frau 127

Notes 153

Bibliography 157

Index 173