

particularly the oversize ground floor windows mirrored by an additional expanse of windows on the second floor—offer a heightened level of detail and interest in the exterior design. This conjures images of bright rays of sunlight shining through, reflecting off dark hardwood floors. It is easy to imagine a family relaxing with windows open on a breezy spring afternoon. Whatever the reasons for the original owner's stylistic choice, this home's design continues to provide a wonderful sense of character on Osceola Drive.

A rear garage and apartment situated behind the primary home duplicates the Oriental design. Photograph courtesy of Andrew West.

