Contents

Preface: A Mulato Fino in the Twenty-First Century—A Personal Reflection ix
Acknowledgments xviii
A Note on Translations xix

Introduction: Nineteenth-Century Costumbrista Writers on the Slave Trade and on Black Traditions in Cuba 1
1. Cuban Costumbrista Portraits of Slaves in Sugarmills: Essays by Anselmo Suárez y Romero 13

2. Juan Francisco Manzano’s Autobiografía de un esclavo: Self-Characterization of an Urban Mulato Fino Slave 60

3. Urban Slaves and Freed Blacks: Black Women’s Objectification and Erotic Taboos 87

4. The Costumbristas’ Views of Manly Black Males: Uppity Blacks and Thugs 120

5. Depictions of the Horrific “Unseen”: Cuban Creole Religious Practices 159

Conclusion: Costumbrista Essays on Blacks: Nineteenth-Century Preconceived Notions of Civility 201

Notes 209
Bibliography 213
Index 223