Contents

Foreword vii
Stanley Harrold and Randall M. Miller

Introduction: The Past, Present, and Future of Colonization Studies 1
Beverly C. Tomek

PART I. RECONSIDERING THE MISSIONARY DIMENSIONS OF COLONIZATION

1. Race, Sympathy, and Missionary Sensibility in the New England Colonization Movement 33
   Gayle L. Kenny

   Ben Wright

3. “He Be God Who Made Dis Man”: Christianity and Conversion in Nineteenth-Century Liberia 70
   Andrew N. Wegmann

4. “Teaching Them to Observe All Things”: African American Women, the Great Commission, and Liberia in the Nineteenth Century 90
   Debra Newman Ham

PART II. RECONSIDERING THE POLITICAL AND DIPLOMATIC DIMENSIONS OF COLONIZATION

5. The American Colonization Society’s Not-So-Private Colonization Project 111
   David F. Ericson
6. James Monroe and the Practicalities of Emancipation and Colonization 129
   Daniel Preston

7. The Missouri Crisis and the “Changed Object” of the American Colonization Society 146
   Nicholas P. Wood

8. Situating African Colonization within the History of U.S. Expansion 166
   Brandon Mills

9. Experiments in Colonial Citizenship in Sierra Leone and Liberia 184
   Bronwen Everill

10. The American Colonization Society and the Civil War 206
    Sebastian N. Page

PART III. Redirecting the Field and Offering New Answers to Old Questions

11. The Cape Mesurado Contract: A Reconsideration 229
    Eric Burin

12. “A Desire to Better Their Condition”: European Immigration, African Colonization, and the Lure of Consensual Emancipation 249
    Andrew Diemer

    Robert Murray

14. Rewriting Their Own History; or, The Many Paul Cuffes 288
    Matthew J. Hetrick

15. The Changing Legacy of Civil War Colonization 303
    Phillip W. Magness

16. Rethinking Colonization in the Early United States 329
    Nicholas Guyatt

Contributors 351
Index 353